

NYC Buildings Fit for Every Type of Star

By Michelle Colman
August 27, 2018

Picks include celebrity favorites like 30 Park Place, 257 East 57th Street, and D'Orsay.

New York City is otherworldly. Every day, another starchitect building reaches for the stars and, at the same time, is perfectly designed to meet the needs of our earthly stars. There will never be a shortage of celebrity-level homes in New York City but the issue is which of the many to choose from in our glitzy urban galaxy. CityRealty put together a list of glamour buildings fit for the star life.

The Starchitect

Starchitects can't just work all the time, they have to live somewhere. Hudson Square is known as an epicenter for creative minds and many architecture and design firms have settled in this neighborhood taking up shop in the area's myriad of former printing houses that are sprinkled throughout. For architects looking for a short commute, 70 Charlton, a new two-tower development steps away from the main thoroughways that house their offices.

30 Warren is an ultra-modern, boutique condominium that is being designed by the Parisian firm Post-Office Architectes. It is pioneering a new form of custom-crafted architectural concrete for its facade, which is sure to attract architects itching to reside in a building spearheading a new design aesthetic. 30 Warren also happens to be surrounded by some of New York City's most historic and beautiful loft buildings as well as iconic new towers, including 56 Leonard, 30 Park Place and One World Trade, making it the ideal home for architects hoping to spend their days and nights admiring some of the City's most incredible architecture.

Located on the waterfront in Brooklyn Heights at Brooklyn Bridge Park, Quay Tower unveils unobstructed views of Manhattan and Downtown Brooklyn, offering an architect the perfect place to admire and observe the ever-evolving architecture of the city. Whether its from the rooftop lounge boasting 360-degree views or the comfort of their own residence, they can observe all of New York City's major icons and have a front-row seat to the progress of new ones under construction. Architects in search of inspiration can take in spectacular views from FiDi up to the rising towers of Long Island City, while enjoying masterful industrial-inspired architecture by ODA's Eran Chen.

70 Charlton

30 Warren

Quay Tower