Developments That Set the Scene for the Perfect Summer Staycation

By: Ameena Walker

With the summer season upon us and increased flight cancellations snarling travel plans, many city dwellers are looking for ways to unwind without straying too far from home. From rooftop views of the iconic Macy's 4th of July fireworks to swimming pools and barbecues, here are seven developments whose amenities offer fun in the sun for residents without the hassle of leaving their confines.

Quay Tower

Residents of the 126 stunning homes at Quay Tower, the ODA-designed waterfront development in Brooklyn Heights, can enjoy its 2,500-square-foot fitness center, get creative in its music room with a baby grand piano, or relax on the rooftop's north-facing Sunset Lounge or the south-facing Sky Cabana, complete with grilling stations, a catering kitchen, and dazzling views of the East River. There might even be an opportunity to take in the July 4th fireworks from Quay Tower's inviting rooftop.
